

Topics to think about for final class:

- what can be learned from thinking about competing theories of capitalism?
- what can be learned from thinking about various ethnographies of capitalism that we read?
- how do we think about them in comparison to the other? What do we learn from each?
- what is potentially learned by thinking about capitalism in relation to its “others” , i.e. various forms of socialism?
- What questions does thinking about financial crisis of 2008 as an ethnographic problem raise for you?
- In your mind, what are most important issues moving forward in thinking about “capitalism” as an issue?

MIT OpenCourseWare
<http://ocw.mit.edu>

21A.461 What is Capitalism?
Fall 2013

For information about citing these materials or our Terms of Use, visit: <http://ocw.mit.edu/terms>.