

Thoughts

Martin Luther coon, Freudian slip. That tells much about his true feelings. It is amazing to see this amount of hate. When there is this much discrimination, it does not simply go away. The idea that people can hate other people to such an extent simply for the color of their skin is amazing to me. I am not shocked by racial discrimination because this is America. However, racism always confuses me because I do not the basis for this hate. To hate someone simply because of their color is ridiculous because you know nothing about that person other than the color of their skin. Therefore, to deny someone's rights bases on this fact is also confusing because ones skin color dictates nothing about who they are. The only reason why skin color has power in society is because we, as a society, have given it that power. This much hatred does not go away, it has to be washed away in blood. Unfortunately, it takes deaths, beating, and a general societal shock to make people aware that the way that society is ran is insane. Honestly, I believe that this is a human problem. At all times, the history of man has contained the persecution of another. Great societies and civilizations are always built on the backs of others. There has always been and will always be, the master and the slave.

Courtesy of Felicco Toney

MIT OpenCourseWare
<http://ocw.mit.edu>

17.922 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. IAP Design Seminar
IAP 2013

For information about citing these materials or our Terms of Use, visit: <http://ocw.mit.edu/terms>.