

Tricia Morente brings over ten years of experience in systems improvement through the intersection of business strategy, organizational effectiveness, and customer insight. As part of the senior management team at LifeSpring Hospitals in India, she directed Strategy and Marketing, leading efforts to scale the maternity hospital. She was an Acumen Fund Fellow and currently serves as Faculty at the Institute for Healthcare Improvement, where she works with low- and middle-income countries around health financing and systems improvement. She is currently working with Results for Development to launch a primary healthcare learning collaborative, providing a peer-learning platform for private sector health organizations focused on the challenge of scale. She has advised healthcare, media, and economic development organizations including Pfizer, Merck, Johnson & Johnson, The New York Times, and the United Nations, and has worked in India, the Philippines, Thailand, Rwanda, Ghana, Australia, and Canada. She received her BA from Harvard University, MBA from Columbia Business School, and MA in International Affairs from Columbia University. In her free time, she is an amateur NYC historian and trapeze artist.
